Dear Strahan

I sent up to Mr. Millar four or five posts ago the same additions, which I had formerly sent to you, with a good many corrections and improvements which occurred to me since. If there are any typographical errors remaining in the last edition which had escaped me, I hope you will correct them. In other respects I could wish it was printed pretty exactly according to the copy which I delivered to you. A man, says the Spanish proverb, had better be a cuckold and know nothing of the matter, than not be cuckold and believe himself to be one. And in the same manner, say I,

Remember me to the Fracklin. I hope I shall have the grace to write to the youngest by next post to thank him in the name both of the College and of myself for his very agreeable present. Remember me likewise to Mr. Griffiths. I am greatly obliged to him for the very handsom character he gave of my book in his review. I ever am, Dear Strahan

most faithfully and
sincerely yours

Dear Strachan

your office

I send you to Mr. Miller ^{some} or ^{some} ^{of} these editions which he had forwarded to you with a good many corrections & improvements which I send to me since. If there are any typographical errors may happen in the last edition which had escaped my eye, you will correct them. In other respects you will find it was printed pretty exactly according to the copy which I delivered to you. A man says the printer's proof had better be a lock of a horse's tail than not be locked at all. I do believe it to be one had in the same manner, say,

Remember me ^{to} the Board of Directors. I hope you will have the grace to ^{at once} the proceed to send back to thank them in the name both of the College & of myself for his very agreeable presence. Remember me likewise to Mr. Griffiths you are greatly obliged to him for the very kind & useful notice he gave of my book in his review. I am

Dear Strachan

Most faithfully &
Sincerely yours
